Bean to Barrel is winning business plan

Brittanie Rector came to Richmond Community College's Small Business Center looking for assistance in starting her own business. She attended multiple free online seminars and decided to enter her business idea in the College's own version of "Shark Tank," a friendly competition among aspiring entrepreneurs.

Rector won the competition called Vision Chase 2022 after presenting her start-up business plan for Bean to Barrel to a panel of judges. She said the win was both humbling and exciting.

"To recognize that Bean to Barrel has value and also has

RichmondCC ready to roll out the trucks

Truck Driver Training program to open up in Scotland County late September

The rigs are rolling in at Richmond Community College for its Truck Driver Training program that will start in late September in Scotland County. The College will have a total of six trucks, two sleeper cabs and four day cabs, for the program.

This course involves extensive training divided into three parts: classroom lecture, range driving and road driving. Upon completion, students will have a broad range of knowledge in safety regulations, defensive driving, map reading, vehicle control, coupling/uncoupling, cargo handling and much more.

RichmondCC previously offered truck driver training in partnership with Caldwell Community College & Technical Institute, but it will now operate its own program housed on property near the Laurinburg-Maxton Airport.

“Our goal was always to have our own program,” said Dr. Dale McInnis, RichmondCC president. “There is a shortage of truck drivers nationwide, and we want to help close that gap by training people in a short amount of time at a low cost for sustainable careers.”

The program is 9 weeks long. Upon completion, students will take the final road test for their commercial driver’s license at RichmondCC’s training facility. Students will not have to go to the DMV.

RichmondCC is offering its

Truck Driver Training program at a reduced cost thanks to funding from the New Skills, New Life Scholarship. Students will only pay $999 for the course fee for a limited time. There will be other costs for physical and drug screening.

The program is approved for veterans’ benefits. Payment plans and WIOA assistance are also available. For more information about WIOA, Scotland County residents should call (910) 405-5200; Richmond County residents should call (910) 997-9180.

To sign up for Truck Driver Training at RichmondCC, contact WED Programming Assistant Alicia Butler at (910) 410-1706 or ambutler979@richmondcc.edu.

Help celebrate military heroes

Richmond Community College will once again be honoring veterans this fall with an Our Heroes’ Tree® program. Celebrate the names and stories of family members, friends, neighbors and others who have served or are serving in the U.S. Armed Forces by creating a remembrance ornament for the Our Heroes Trees’ on display at the Hamlet and Scotland County campuses. A special ceremony will be held Sept. 20 at 10 a.m. at the Honeycutt Center and Sept. 28 at 10 a.m. at the Cole Auditorium. Join us on either of these days!

the potential to be a business that Rockingham wants and would enjoy, that in and of itself creates excitement and confidence. But it is also a humbling experience,” Rector said.

To be located in the old Richmond County Bank building in downtown Rockingham, Bean to Barrel will be a combination of a coffee shop and wine bar. It will offer a variety of wines, coffees, craft beer, teas and light food options. Rector said the biggest focus will be on the experience patrons have when they come in the door.

“I visualize it as a hybrid experience, a place where you can run in and grab something and head back out, but also be a place where people can come together,” Rector said. “Our goal is to provide a local spot where the community can enjoy a locally roasted cup of coffee, a simple cup of tea, a glass of wine, or a craft beer with some light food.”

Rector and husband Josh, who is a co-owner of Bean to Barrel Inc., are in the process of restoring the old bank building to make it a functional space. She said working with Small Business Center Director Butch Farrah has been instrumental in formulating their business plan.

“Brittanie has worked hard to turn her visions for this business

James Coleman was the second-place winner in Vision Chase with his start-up business plan for Sun for Cash Solar, a company offering a wide range of solar products for use indoors and outdoors. A resident of Cumberland County, Coleman will operate his business out of his home.

“The company will be the gateway to the newest solar technology for residential and commercial customers,” Coleman said.

A veteran going to college on the G.I. Bill, Coleman is enrolled in the Associate in Business Administration program at RichmondCC. He also continues to use RichmondCC's Small Business Center for help with grants and funding for his new business.

Human Resources certificate coming this fall

There is a growing demand for human resources personnel both locally and nationally, which is why Richmond Community College has created a new certificate that will prepare people to fill these positions.

"Companies have contacted the college wanting to know if any students or alumni would be interested in a human resources position," said Office Administration Program Coordinator Lori McLaughlin.

Human resources managers plan, coordinate, and direct the administrative functions of an organization. They oversee the recruiting, interviewing, and hiring of new staff; consult with top executives on strategic planning; and serve as a link between an organization's management and its employees.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the employment of human resources managers will grow about 9 percent for the next 8 years.

The Human Resources certificate at RichmondCC includes three classes that concentrate on employment laws, training and development, and recruiting and personnel planning.

"This is a great certificate for our students in the Office Administration or Business Administration program," said McLaughlin. "In addition to their associate degrees, the certificate gives them the overall knowledge of human resources principles and practices."

That foundation, coupled with the administrative knowledge students learn in Office or Business Administration, will qualify them for any entry or mid-level office job. Human resources managers are needed in the healthcare, manufacturing, retail and the education field.

"This is an opportunity to gain career skills that will allow you to find employment locally, regionally or nationally," McLaughlin said. "It's a great investment in your future."

RichmondCC will be offering the Human Resources certificate starting this fall semester. Now is the time to register for classes and apply for scholarships and financial aid. Visit the Hamlet or Scotland County Campus, or call (910) 410-1700. Applications are free and completed online.

"This is going to be a great event that will get the community involved in a scholarship fundraiser for RichmondCC," said Dr. Hal Shuler, Associate Vice President for Development at RichmondCC. "Our students are working hard to get an education, and we are working hard to make sure they graduate and start a career debt free."

The RichmondCC Foundation is looking for sponsors for the show. If you or your business is interested in supporting the RichmondCC Car, Truck & Bike Show, contact Shuler at (910) 410-1807 or email whshuler@richmondcc.edu.

Counseling services expanded for college students

Being a college student comes with its challenges, so Richmond Community College is making sure it has the right services and resources in place to help students not just further their education, but also resolve personal issues and improve their lives.

RichmondCC counselors, who have played a major role in registering students in the past, will shift their focus to counseling and the mental health of students.

“We know that our students are facing a lot of challenges at home, school and work, especially those who missed the socialization and the human connectivity over the last couple of years,” said Dr. Dale McInnis, RichmondCC president. “We want our counselors to be very proactive on working to get those students re-socialized and reconnected.”

Counselors are working on engaging students both on and off campus by developing and implementing workshops and activities to support students' mental, social, emotional and educational needs. Last semester, counselors held several workshops for test anxiety, and faculty and staff across the college participated in Mental Health

First Aid workshops.

Members of RichmondCC's Student Government Association also went through training in “Bystander Approach: Helping a Friend in Need.” They took what they learned and held sessions with other students on identifying potential mental or emotional health issues among their classmates.

“These activities will be ongoing throughout each semester,” said RichmondCC counselor Christina Snell. “This is in addition to promoting the availability of and implementing counseling services for our students who may feel the need for support.”

Counseling services are available at both the Hamlet and Scotland County campuses. Students who are taking online classes also have access to online counseling services.

Information that is shared with RichmondCC counselors is confidential and is not shared with outside agencies, organizations or family members without written consent.

“We can also refer students to a professional, if their needs go beyond our scope of practice,” said Director of Counseling Chris Gardner.

Aim to win in the annual Clay Shooting Classic

The Richmond Community College Foundation will host its 7th annual Clay Shooting Classic on Oct. 13 at DeWitt's Outdoor Sports in Ellerbe. This is a yearly fundraiser for scholarships that help RichmondCC students earn a college degree or obtain career training with zero debt.

Come compete on one of the most exciting and challenging sporting clay courses you will find anywhere. The competition includes 14 shooting stations plus the flurry shoot-out. Trophies for 1st, 2nd and 3rd place will be awarded for teams and individuals.

There will also be a raffle for a Kawasaki Teryx recreational side by side from Sport Cycles, plus other great prizes. Raffle tickets are $60 for one or $100 for two.

Entry Fees

- Clay Shoot Team (4 shooters): $1,000
- Clay Shoot Individual: $250
- Shooting Station Sponsor: $750

Businesses or organizations that purchase a station sponsorship and supply a clay shoot team of 4 will be discounted $100 and will receive 4 raffle tickets. Total: $1,650

Entry Fee Includes

- Ammo (20 or 12 gauge shells)
- Shotgun (if needed)
- Lunch before shooting
- Social/dessert hour after the shoot
- Goody bag & T-shirt
- $60 raffle ticket

Purchase a mulligan for $10. Limit of 5 mulligans per shooter.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. with a morning shoot at 10 a.m. and afternoon shoot at 1 p.m. Awards will be given at 3 p.m.

DeWitt's provides a limited number of golf carts to get around the course; you are welcome to bring your own 4-wheel transportation.
