Jeanne Robertson

Get ready to have your funny bone tickled. Thanks to the internet and online video sites like Youtube.com, Jeanne Robertson, once known only for her conference and convention appearances, is slowly but surely becoming a household name. Why is she such a big hit? She specializes in hilarious humor based on her real life experiences.

Jeanne's southern voice (she says that she speaks two languages, English and Southern, and has trouble with English) and storytelling ability provide some of the best "downhome" humor around.

A former Miss North Carolina and Miss Congeniality Award-winner in the Miss American Pageant, Jeanne has a one-of-a-kind ability to turn personal experiences into humorous presentations that do more than elicit laughter. She leaves her audiences thinking about her message.

As well as traveling around the country speaking at luncheons and conferences, she can now be heard daily on Sirius/XM's Family Comedy Channel, Laugh USA.

If you have never heard Jeanne before, visit the Cole website for a small sample of Jeanne's wit and don't miss the best laughs when she appears live.
